Notes on the translation:

1. The German announcement relates both to employees in the public sector and to judges. Sections that apply solely to judges are omitted in this translation, and other sections are simplified to focus on the effects on employees in the public sector.
2. German law distinguishes between two types of employee in the public sector:
 - a. "Arbeitnehmer im öffentlichen Dienst" who we call here "employees in the civil service" and
 - b. a special class called "Beamte" who have their own legal status and we call here "civil servants".

We give informal translations of titles of offices, laws and announcements to indicate their function, giving the original German title and/or abbreviation in italics when first used within the document .

Announcement Relating to the Duty to Uphold the Constitution in the Civil Service

(Verfassungstreue-Bekanntmachung – VerftöDBek)

Announcement of the Bavarian Government

December 3, 1991, Az. B III 3-180-6-403

(General Ministerial Gazette (AllMBl) p. 895)

(Official Gazette of the Bavarian State Ministry of Finance, State Development and Homeland (FMBI) p. 510)

(Government Gazette (StAnz) No. 49)

last amended with the Announcement of September 27, 2016 (General Ministerial Gazette p. 2138)

Part 1 General provisions

1. Duty to uphold the constitution

In accordance with the Basic Law (Grundgesetz), the Constitution of Bavaria (Verfassung), the Civil Servant Status Act (Beamtenstatusgesetz (BeamtStG)) and the German Judges' Law (Deutschen Richtergesetz)

- only those who pledge to uphold the principles of liberal democracy set forth in the Basic Law and Constitution of Bavaria at all times are eligible for employment as a civil servant;
- civil servants are obliged to actively uphold and defend these principles, whether on duty or off duty.

2. Basic principles of the examination

2.1 Each case must be examined and appraised individually. The following guiding principles provide the basis for making a decision:

2.2 Applicant

2.2.1 No applicant who becomes involved in anti-constitutional activities shall be hired in the civil service.

2.2.2 Membership in an organization that pursues unconstitutional goals is grounds for doubting that the applicant will uphold and defend the principles of liberal democracy at all times.

2.2.3 Any applicant who violates the principles of humanity or rule of law or who worked for the Ministry of State Security (Ministerium für Staatssicherheit) or for the National Security Agency (Amt für Nationale Sicherheit) of the former GDR (East Germany) is ineligible for employment in the civil service.

2.3 Civil Servants

If a civil servant fails to meet the requirements set forth in Section 33 Para. 1 Claus 3 of the Civil Servant Status Act (stipulating the duty to uphold and defend the principles of liberal democracy at all times), then the employer is to examine the case and take the appropriate steps, verifying in particular, whether the civil servant's dismissal should be sought.

3. Employees

The same principles hold for employees in the civil service.

Part 2 Procedure

The Bavarian Government has reinforced the commitment of all civil employers in Bavaria to these principles.

The following decisions have been made with regard to enforcing these principles:

1. The applicant shall be given the instructions and information contained in Annex 1 prior to their engagement. The applicant shall also be given a list of extremist organizations and organizations influenced by extremists. On the basis of this list, the applicant shall complete the questionnaire contained in Annex 2 and subsequently sign the declaration in Annex 3. Persons who were employed in Bavaria's civil service within a period of three years prior to the current employment period shall not be examined again, barring suspicious circumstances. However, in case of suspicious circumstances that have not yet been examined, items 1 through 6 shall be carried out again. In either case, the applicant shall sign the declaration contained in Annex 4.

If the questionnaire is not signed or is incomplete and this leads to doubt concerning the applicant's loyalty to the constitution, an examination of loyalty to the constitution will generally require obtaining relevant information from the Bavarian Office for the Protection of the Constitution (Landesamt für Verfassungsschutz) (with the applicant's consent). Cases involving applicants from the acceding territory in the cases listed in § 20 Para. 1 No. 6 d, e and h and § 21 Para. 1 No. 6 d, e and h of the Law on the Files of the State Security Service of the former German Democratic Republic (Stasi-Unterlagen-Gesetzes (StUG)) will also generally require information from the Federal Commissioner for the Files of the State Security Service of the former German Democratic Republic (Bundesbeauftragten für die Unterlagen des Staatssicherheitsdienstes der ehemaligen Deutschen Demokratischen Republik).

Whether this procedure is deemed sufficient is to be checked particularly carefully in each individual case. Should the applicant refuse permission for the inquiry with the Bavarian Office for the Protection of the Constitution or with the Federal Commissioner, then any employment is rejected.

2. If the applicant refuses to sign the declaration in Annex 3 or Annex 4 or if suspicion arises in connection with the answers provided in the questionnaire, or if there are other reasons to doubt that the applicant would uphold and defend the principles of liberal democracy as set forth in the Basic Law and Bavarian constitution at all times, then this suspicion must be allayed prior to hiring the applicant. In particular, this involves:

- contacting the Bavarian Office for the Protection of the Constitution, to enquire whether facts are known which would justify reservations against hiring the applicant. The Bavarian Office for the Protection of the Constitution is obliged to reply to such requests without delay. If information is presented, only those details which concern facts that could be used as evidence in a court of law are to be used.

Should the conveyance of information from the Bavarian Office for the Protection of the Constitution not take place because, for legal reasons, there is no authorization for conveyance to the recruiting authority, and this information comes to be known to the recruiting authority, then this information is not to be taken into account in the recruitment procedure should it be discernible to the recruiting authority that the information is from the Bavarian Office for the Protection of the Constitution.

- contacting the Federal Commissioner for the Files of the State Security Service of the former German Democratic Republic for applicants from the acceding territory of the former GDR referred to in Section 20 para 1 number 6 item (d), item (h) and Section 21 para 1 number 6 item (d), item (h) of the Law on the Files of the State Security Service of the former German Democratic Republic (with the consent of the applicant).

3. For those applicants born prior to January 12, 1972, and who are from the acceding territory of the former GDR referred to in Section 20 Para. 1 No. 6 (d) (e) and (h) and Section 21 Para. 1 No. 6 (d), (e) and (h) of the Law on the Files of the State Security Service of the former German Democratic Republic, the Federal Commissioner for the Files of the State Security Service of the former German Democratic Republic shall always be contacted (with the consent of the applicant) to ensure the applicant did not carry out any activities for the Ministry of State Security or the National Security Agency of the former GDR.

The applicant's appointment shall be revoked if he or she is shown to have falsely denied working for the Ministry of State Security or the National Security Agency of the former GDR (Section 12 Civil Servant Status Act).

Alternatively, applicants from the acceding territory may be hired for a fixed term of 12 months, subject to the results of the examination, as long as there are urgent official reasons for doing so and no suspicious circumstances are known. The limited-term nature of the contract is due to the examination that is being carried out. If extension of the contract is to be refused due to the results of the examination, the employment relationship shall be cancelled as soon as possible or legally challenged on the basis of willful deceit (Section 123 of the German Civil Code (Bürgerlichen Gesetzbuch, BGB)), as long as this is not rendered superfluous by the expiration of the employment agreement.

4. In the following cases, the Bavarian Office for the Protection of the Constitution shall always (in contrast to item 2) be contacted with the consent of the applicant:

4.1 For applicants whose recruitment to employment in the civil service is in connection with their initial appointment as a judge.

4.2 In the case of applicants who were born in or who bear the nationality of one of the states listed below:

- Afghanistan
- Egypt
- Algeria
- Bahrain
- Bangladesh
- Eritrea
- Indonesia
- Iraq
- Iran
- Israel (Palestinians)
- Yemen
- Jordan
- Kazakhstan
- Kyrgyzstan
- Kuwait
- Lebanon
- Libya
- Morocco
- Mauritania
- Oman
- Pakistan
- Saudi Arabia
- Somalia
- Sudan
- Syria
- Tadzhikistan
- Tunisia
- Turkmenistan
- Uzbekistan
- United Arab Emirates.

4.3 The same holds for applicants who do not hold any citizenship (so-called "stateless" persons) or whose citizenship status is unclear.

4.4 Inquiries in accordance with Numbers 4.1 to 4.3 take place with the consent of the applicant; Art. 15 Para. 2 to 4 of the Bavarian Data Protection Act (Bayerisches Datenschutzgesetz) must be heeded. It should only take place when the appointment is intended, possibly subject to the receipt and examination of outstanding documents, and medical suitability. Should an inquiry be instigated, and it then become clear that the appointment will not take place, then the inquiry is to be countermanded without delay.

5. If the suspicion cannot be allayed, the applicant shall be invited to make a statement on the issue, which may be orally or in writing. This invitation is to be accompanied by details of the significant underlying facts in writing. Should a hearing take place, the applicant's important statements are to be minuted, and the applicant is to be allowed to inspect the minutes. If doubt persists following this statement, the applicant shall not be hired in the civil service. Neither shall the applicant be hired in the civil service if he or she refuses to provide consent in items 3 or 4.

6. If hiring the applicant in the civil service is denied because the applicant does not pledge to uphold and defend the principles of liberal democracy as set forth in the Basic Law, the applicant shall be informed of the decision and the reasons therefor in writing. If this decision applies to the employment of the applicant as a judge or a civil servant, then instructions on the applicant's right to appeal shall also be included.

7. If there is suspicion that a member of the civil service is violating the obligation to uphold the constitution, his or her employer shall consider whether legal measures are to be taken to ensure that he or she fulfills this duty or whether the person in question should be dismissed.

8. The Bavarian Ministry of the Interior (Bayerische Staatsministerium des Innern, für Bau und Verkehr) has compiled a list of the most important extremist organizations and organizations influenced by extremists. This list has been published in the General Ministerial Gazette and in the Bavarian Government Gazette (Bayerischer Staatsanzeiger)*. The Ministry of the Interior shall update this list as needed.

9. In cases in which item 6 or item 7 apply, the highest public authority, as well as the Ministry of the Interior and the Ministry of Finance (Bayerisches Staatsministerium der Finanzen, für Landesentwicklung und Heimat), are to be informed and kept up to date regarding any further developments.

...(Parts 3 and 4 are not included in this translation)...

Part 5 Closing provision

This Announcement shall take effect on January 1, 1992. It replaces the Announcement of the Bavarian State Government on the Duty of Upholding the Constitution in the Civil Service (Bekanntmachung der Bayerischen Staatsregierung über die Pflicht zur Verfassungstreue im öffentlichen Dienst) of March 17, 1973 (Government Gazette Number 16, Official Gazette of the Bavarian State Ministry of Finance, State Development and Homeland p. 149).

Instructions concerning duty to uphold the constitution in the civil service

In all their conduct, civil servants must acknowledge and uphold the free democratic basic order of the German state within the meaning of the German Basic Law (Section 33 Para. 1 Claus 3 Civil Servant Status Act). Accordingly, and pursuant to Section 7 Para. 1 No. 2 Civil Servant Status Act, eligibility for appointment as civil servants is restricted to persons who pledge to uphold at all times the free democratic basic order of the German state within the meaning of the German Basic Law and the Constitution of the Free State of Bavaria (Verfassung des Freistaates Bayern).

The obligation of employees to acknowledge and uphold in all their conduct the free democratic basic order of the German state within the meaning of the Basic Law is set out in Section 3 Para. 1 Clause 2 of the Collective Agreement for the Civil Sector of the Federal States (Tarifvertrag für den öffentlichen Dienst der Länder, TV-L).

According to the decisions of the Federal Constitutional Court (Bundesverfassungsgericht), the principles of liberal democracy as set out in the Basic Law are principles that exclude tyranny and despotism and foster freedom, equality, and the people's right to self-determination - to follow the will of the majority (cf. decision of October 23, 1952 - Ref. No. I BvB 1 51 – Compilation of the Decisions of the Federal Constitutional Court (Sammlung der Entscheidungen des Bundesverfassungsgerichts) Vol. 2 p. 1 ff - ; decision of August 17, 1956 - Ref. No. I BvB 2 51 - Compilation of the Decisions of the Federal Constitutional Court Vol. 3 p. 85 ff -). The principles of liberal democracy stand in stark contrast to the totalitarian state, which, as an absolute power, rejects freedom, equality, and human dignity. The key principles involved are as follows:

Respect for human rights as made concrete in the Basic Law, especially, respect for the right of the individual to life and freedom of personal development;

sovereignty of the people, division of powers;

accountability of the government, legality of the administration, independence of the courts;

the multiple party principle;

equal opportunities for all political parties;

the right to form and exercise opposition in the framework of the constitution.

Participation in activities that go against the aforementioned principles characteristic of a liberal democratic system is not compatible with the duty of anyone employed in the civil service, regardless of whether or not such activities are carried out within an organization.

Applicants who take part in or support anti-constitutional activities are not eligible for civil service positions.

Civil servants and judges who commit such a breach of duty should be aware that disciplinary action will be taken against them with the goal of removing them from service.

In such cases, the employee will be issued an extraordinary notice of dismissal pursuant to Section 626 Para. 1 German Civil Code.
